

FEMINIST PATHWAYS TO WELL-BEING ECONOMY

Gender Justice in the Era of Polycrisis
Naila Kabeer

Rising economic inequalities and accelerating climate change are the central challenges of our time. Recognition of their shared roots in the current market-driven pursuit of economic growth has given rise to the search for a more just economic paradigm. However, less attention has been paid to gender inequality in this literature and to its interaction with these other forms of injustice. This presentation addresses this gap in our knowledge and draws out some of the ways that our research programme hopes to contribute to carving out feminist pathways to an economic system that prioritizes the wellbeing of people and planet.

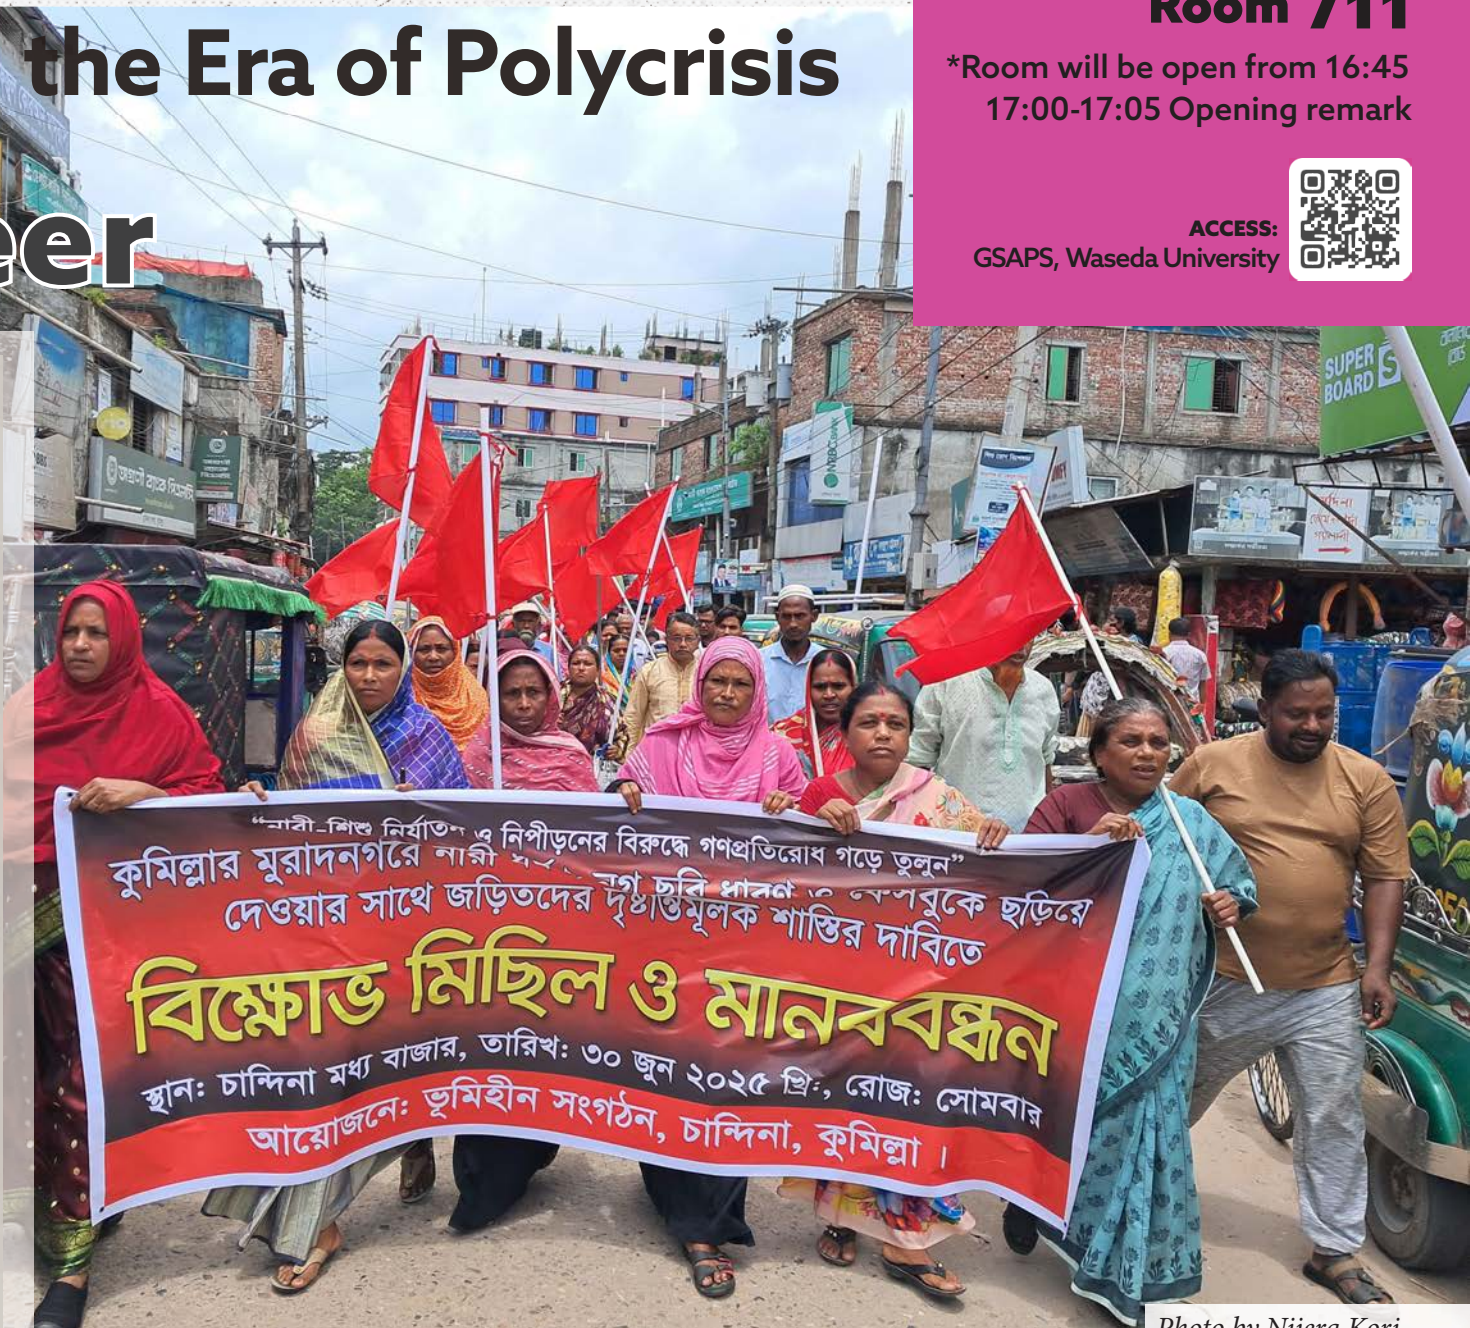

Photo by Nijera Kori

Discussants

Yoko Hayami

Professor Emeritus, Kyoto University

Kunio Urakawa

Professor, Faculty of Economics, Kyusyu University

Moderator

Tamaki Endo

Professor, Graduate School of Asia-Pacific Studies, Waseda University

This event will be in-person. Please register from here.

Registration

Naila Kabeer is Emeritus Professor of Gender and Development in the Department of International Development at London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE). Naila is also a Faculty Associate of the International Inequalities Institute, LSE and directs its research programme on Gender Justice and the Wellbeing Economy,. She has done extensive advisory work with international agencies (World Bank, ADB, UNDP, UN Women), bilateral agencies (DFID, SIDA, CIDA, IDRC) and NGOs (Oxfam, Action Aid, BRAC, PRADAN and Nijera Kori).

Her most recent publication is Renegotiating Patriarchy: Gender, Agency and the 'Bangladesh Paradox'

LSE Press 2024: Open Access: <https://press.lse.ac.uk/books/m/10.31389/lsepress.rpg> Website: <https://nailakabeer.net/about-me/>

Organizer: KAKEN Research Project "Informality and new social contract: From the cases of Asian megacities",
(Grant-Aid for Scientific Research A: 25H00518), FY2025 JSPS Invitational Fellowships for Research in Japan
Co-organizer: Graduate School of Asia-Pacific Studies, Waseda University

28
NOV
2025
In-person only
5:00-7:00 PM

Waseda campus,
Building no.19,
Room 711

*Room will be open from 16:45
17:00-17:05 Opening remark

ACCESS:
GSAPS, Waseda University

